WHAT FACTORS INFLUENCED PERFORMANCE

In the Equity portion of the 1919 Socially Responsive Balanced Fund, our stock selection in artificial intelligence-related companies helped to drive strong stock selection in the Consumer Discretionary, Communication Services, and Information Technology sectors. Stock selection within the Health Care sector and the lack of traditional energy exposure were both additive to results for the year. While the Fund held a number of strong performing Health Care stocks, the Fund was overweight to Health Care and the December sell off in the sector hurt relative returns.

The Fixed-Income portion of the Fund benefitted from a shorter duration, as U.S. Treasury yields rose over 50 basis points (0.50%) from 5-year maturities to 30-years. The Treasury curve un-inverted late in the third quarter, and longer yields repriced higher going into year-end as expectations for additional Federal Reserve rate cuts were meaningfully lowered following better-than-expected economic data and fiscal uncertainty related to the new Presidential administration. The largest detractor to Fixed Income performance was the underweight to the securitized sector, as the shorter duration for the group helped generate positive returns.
